Dr. Brittany Hall is a certified Values Technology consultant and provides consultation to businesses in organization and development.

She received her Ph.D. in clinical psychology from Seattle Pacific University in 2004 and is an assistant professor for UT Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas, Texas and also sees patients in private practice. She enjoys supervising and training psychology students and research assistants at the doctoral and undergraduate levels.

Experience

Brittany has worked in multiple settings throughout her education and career including state medical centers, county hospitals, the Federal Bureau of Prisons, and privately owned companies. She has extensive training in supervision and teaching and has worked on projects organizing the dissemination of specific treatment modalities to other mental health providers. Currently, Brittany is designing and launching a program within the medical community designed to meet unmet needs of an underserved population. This program will be a collaboration between medical providers, patients, and competing medical facilities. She conducts research on these programs to assess quality improvement to inform the direction of development.

Achievements

Brittany was awarded supervisor of the year in 2016 in the UT Southwestern Medical Center psychology PH.D. program during her first year as a licensed provider. She is published in the areas of training, supervision, oncology, and substance abuse and regularly speaks at national conferences and local medical settings.

Educational Background

Brittany received a B.A. in psychology from Point Loma Nazarene University. She completed her M.A. and Ph.D. in clinical psychology from Seattle Pacific University. She completed her predoctoral internship at the Federal Medical Center for female inmates and her postdoctoral training at Harbor-UCLA Medical Center.

She resides in Fort Worth, Texas with her husband, Tony, and three children where they own and operate a local pizza restaurant.
